I'm having a Yuri's Night party!

My Russian officemate says she's found some Cosmonaut videos to show at the party, and we've got the space theme going with decorations and stuff, but mostly it's just inviting the pagans and the linguists and letting the usual weirdness happen.

Everything is Very Interesting. Very.

Did you follow the link to the photo of the last year's NASA party? There were dancing girls with glowing hula-hoops. We should have gone last year. Okay, kind of a drive...

The drive to Last Year? It is a bit steep.

What are you guys doooooing out there.

And where was the cowboy last night?

I might even let you borrow it sometimes. That is, if I were to happen to have one.

Oh, she's not so bad. That space alien in the cape has turned her head, is all.

When I decided to be born in February, I must not have realized I'd own a motorcycle. Winter storms play hell with...

He took this back from doing a scene, and he had a thought. So he followed up on it.

You know, when I do that, it leads to some sort of disaster? And I get called on the carpet for it? Especially when I neglect to mention to anyone before I do it?

Well, when Cowboys do it, none of those things happen. And it results in a clue.

Yes, I am still sulking. Why do you ask?

I stopped in for a bit of the Greenwood Space Travel Supply Co.'s reading of War and Peace in celebration of Yuri's Night. I missed the borsht and piroskies, but I did pick up some portable oxygen pockets and a jar of superstring (absolutely vital for crossing the Calabi-Yau Manifold uninjured, and useful for the correct functioning of Bosonic Regulators and correct orientation of Branes Cross-dimensional Actuators).

Nah. They did eight hours worth of reading, and whatever they read in that period, that's how much got read.
